Air Traffic Controllers in Canada ensure the safety of more than 3 million flights every year.

While the pandemic has had a devastating impact on Canada's air sector, every measure must be taken to ensure that NAV CANADA remains in a position to maintain its high standard of aviation safety in the post-pandemic recovery. We can't afford to lose the expertise that keeps our skies safe.

We are urging the government to take immediate and decisive action to reverse NAV CANADA's efforts to reduce its essential workforce with planned layoffs and service reductions in our communities. Safety is the highest priority of this highly specialized group and any compromise to that safety should be ceased.

We call on Transport Minister Omar Alghabra to step in to ensure that NAV CANADA is sufficiently staffed to safely operate the Air Navigation System it has been entrusted with on behalf of all Canadians and the flying public.

Join us in calling on Prime Minister Trudeau and Minister Alghabra to take action now.
